POSTMODERN LITERATURE IN ENGLISH

Internal Quality Assurance cell (IQAC) of Swami YoganandaGiri College, Saktiashram is going to organize a One Day State Level Seminar on postmodernism Literature in English on 30.10.2017. Postmodernism went further ahead and emphasized that truth was relative and not absolute. The belief that participation is cognition of an object as it has really been abandoned and it is being increasingly believed that we perceived an object, an episode or an event not as it is but as it appears to us. Because of this world view, literature brought itself very close to the 'disappearance of the real.' It celebrated the idea of fragmentation, provisionally and incoherence, evolved new modes and techniques of expression and left it for the reader to impose his own narrative on the text and to make sense out of the senseless. It is a fact that Postmodernartists whisper at their own distress in their works. Writers chucked linear narratives and chronology out of the window in favour of confusing stories that jumped around and many of them dumped distant, third-person narrators in favour of the stream of consciousness.

The aim of this concept note is not to present a systematic description of all postmodern trends in literature. The aim is only to make a brief mention of the outstanding view points during the last one hundred years. But on the basis of this brief and casual survey of the postmodern trends and 'isms' in literature in English, it can be hypothesized that literature is and has been very largely a search for being and becoming. These trends and 'isms' are manifestation of the urge for becoming, the urge to be recognized, the urge for asserting one's identity, the urge for going ahead in the journey of life, the urge for expansion and augmentation, the urge for discovering meaning in a world that may appear to be utterly meaningless. This urge for becoming is not always clearly noticeable it is always there hiding itself at the very root of the 'isms' of our age. We are keenly aware of the fact that this hypothesis of ours, the hypothesis that literature, and particularly the 'isms' in recent literary theory is a manifestation of the urge for becoming needs a lot of proving.

The Primary aim of this one-day seminar is to assess on the basis of the papers presented in the seminar whether this hypothesis can be validated or whether it needs to be abandoned as the attempt of a blind man in a dark room looking for a black cat which is not there.

Some of the subtitles of the seminar are listed below. The list is illustrative and no means final.

Contemporary Indian English Poetry

Internal Quality Assurance cell (IQAC) of Swami Yogananda Giri College, Saktiashram is going to organize a one Day State Level Seminar on Contemporary Indian English Poetry on 24.09.2018.

Indian English poetry has marched a long way and has attained today popularity and prestige in the literary world. Henry Derozio started the idea of composing English poems on Indian themes; the famed Dutt's including Michael Madhusudan Dutt, Govind Chandra Dutt and his brothers, and Toru Dutt, offered it the much- needed impetus and direction; and the succeeding poets like R.N Tagore, Manmohan Ghosh, Sri Aurobindo, Sarojini Naidu, Harindranath Chattopadhyay etc. provided it with strength and diversity. India's independence in 1947 marked a break with the past poetic practice and ushered in a new era of socio-political consciousness and religio-cultural awakening. It set in a 'new' trend of poetical composition suffused with thematic variety, technical innovations, national and cultural instincts. Such contemporary poets as Nissim Ezekiel, P.Lal, A.K. Ramanujan, Kamala Das, Jayanta Mahapatra, Dom Moraes, Keshav Malik, Keki N.Daruwalla and Pritish Nandy, to name only a few, contributed substantially to the furtherance of 'new' Indian English Poetry.

All cotemporary Indian English poetry is sustained by the living waters of our racial tradition- deeply rooted in the Vedas, the Upanishads and the two great epics- The Ramayana and The Mahabharata. Poetry, being the most compact and complex form of art, is the best means of giving form and utterance to the hopes and despairs, the enthusiasm and apathy and the sense of joy and pain in the history of a nation. Contemporary Indian English poetry shows the re-assertion of the national genius and the emergence of a new spirit, self-confident and deeply rooted in the national tradition- so dynamic and modern. The spirit of poetry is as ancient the Vedas and as modern as the latest guided missile. Indian English poetry has now also drawn the scholarly and critical attention in almost all Indian and foreign university.

Indian English poetry has a unique role to derive from and to promote Indian spirit and consciousness and racial sensibility throughout the world. It also projects a total vision of Mother India, analyzing her aspiration and hopes and recording her pains and frustrations together with a sense of national identity. 'National Identity' has been for Bharat a spiralling concept ranging from the material to the spiritual. It was not for nothing that Sri Aurobindo said in an article in Bandemataram –the sap that keeps (love for our national identity) alive is the realization of the motherhood of God in our country, vision of the Mother, the perpetual contemplation, adoration and service to the Mother. Mahatma Gandhi in his Hind Swaraj- also said that the ancient Hindus saw that India was one undivided land so made by Nature and India was one Nation and to make them realize, established holy places in different parts of the country and- fired the people with an idea of nationality in a manner unknown to the other parts of the world. Of late, several new voices have emerged on the poetic horizon and the present seminar intends to highlight them with an exploration of the cultural constructs and identity issues in their poetry so that the research scholars may work for their Ph. D degree on the Contemporary Indian English poets and their poetry.

Some of the subtitles of the seminar are listed below:

- Culture and Identity
- Unity in Cultural Diversity
- Themes and Techniques
- Socio-political Concerns
- Moral, Spiritual and Mystical Contexts
- Gender and the Subaltern
- Nation and the Race
- Transnational and Transcultural Discourses.
